Art Unit: 2655

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the admitted prior art in view of Ikeda et al (6067284).

The claims are merely drawn to the relocation of the PCA within the lead out area as opposed to the lead-in area of the disk. The admitted prior art discloses the use of an optical disk having a PCA calibration area based on the Orange Book standard.

However the admitted prior art does not disclose the use of having the PCA within the lead-out area of the disk. The secondary reference discloses the use of optimizing the laser output during a test recording within the lead-in or the lead-out area of the disk as shown in fig 17-18B and column 18 lines 1-8. it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to calibrate the laser output by test recoding on the lead-in area of the disk. Such modification is merely a relocation of test recording area as shown by the alternative test recording on either area of the disk by the secondary reference. Thus it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to optimize the test recording on the disk by either alternative area on the disk.

With respect to the limitations of the dependent claims. The use of separation area is within the standardization of test recording based on the Orange Book.

Art Unit: 2655

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Each of the following references disclose the use of test recording to optimize the laser output within the lead-out area of the disk. 6078559; 6459666 and 6795381.
